

Rubric for Programming Language Presentation

Criteria	0	1	2	3
Nonverbal Skills
Eye Contact	You did not attempt to look at audience at all.	You only focused attention to one particular part of the class, you did not scan audience.	Occasionally you looked at someone or some groups during presentation.	You constantly looked at someone or some groups at all times.
Posture	You faced your back to the audience; reading slides.	You sat during presentation.	You occasionally slumped during presentation or leaned on podium.	You stood up straight with both feet on the ground.
Vocal Skills
Enthusiasm	You showed absolutely no interest in the topic presented.	You showed some negativity toward topic presented.	You occasionally showed positive feelings about topic.	You demonstrated a strong positive feeling about topic during entire presentation.
Vocalized Pauses (uh, well uh, um)	You said 10 or more vp's.	You said 6-9 vp's.	You said 1-5 vp's.	You did not use any vocalized pauses.
Preparedness	You were unprepared.	You read notes or slides to the audience.	You seemed prepared, however, occasionally read notes or slides to audience.	You seemed well prepared for the presentation; no reading of materials evident.
Electronic Presentation
Grammar/Punctuation	Errors distract or impair readability and major revision is required. (5 or more errors)	Errors distract or impair readability. (3-4 errors)	The text is clearly written with little or no editing required.	Free from errors in grammar, capitalization, punctuation, spelling, and consistency.
Use of Presentation Aids	Poorly developed Presentation Aids	Use of Presentation Aids was distracting rather than an enhancement to your presentation	Presentation Aids were mostly well developed	Presentation Aids were well developed and was a strong enhancement to the presentation.
Content
Coverage of Topic	Major points left out.	Majority of points glossed over.	Majority of points covered in depth, some points glossed over.	Thoroughly covers all of the necessary topics related to your assigned topic.
Total Possible Points 24				